Headlines: Sandy's Impact on Voting Today

Posted on Nov 06, Posted by Mike Muller Category City

The cityâ€™s Board of Elections moved 66 polling sites , many to supersites that consolidate multiple poll sites into one location. S huttle buses running every 15 minutes will ferry voters to and from polling places in three areas hit particularly hard by the storm. The MTA is also providing voter shuttles . for people in the Rockaways, Staten Island and Coney Island whose polling places were damaged in the storm. Voters in the city can cast affidavit ballots at any polling site, but if they vote in a different district than where they're registered, the can't vote for legislative races other than the U.S. Senate. The GOP has accused the board of playing politics with relocating polling places in Queens, saying it will make it harder for Republican Eric Ulrich to get his supporters to the polls.

In the Press...

Feds May Put Up FEMA Trailers in NYC (Daily News)

Sandy Exposes Big Flaws with City's New, $2 Billion 911 System (NY Post)

174 Public Housing Buildings Still Lack Heat and Hot Water and 114 Lack Power (NY Times)

Officials Investigate Price Gouging in Sandy's Aftermath (WNYC)

Cuomo Orders Insurance Companies to Make Some Concessions (Wall Street Journal)

NYPD Limited Passengers on Some Subway Platforms (Wall Street Journal)

About 60 Percent of Gas stations in the City Were Open Monday (NY Times)

Super PAC Sets Sights on Ousting Silver as Assembly Speaker (NY Post)

Tags: Tagged in: governing hurricane sandy sandy transportation voting